Priority

According the preliminary amendment filed 09/03/2002 this application is a CON of 09/941,992, filed 08/28/2001, which claims the benefit of 60/213,637, filed 06/23/2000, and 60/230,978, filed 09/07/2000. The benefit claim to 60/213,637, filed 06/23/2000, is not proper because it must be filed within twelve months from the filing date of the provisional application. Any nonprovisional application that directly claims the benefit of a provisional application under 35 U.S.C. § 119(e) must be filed within twelve months from the filing date of the provisional application. If a benefit claim to a provisional application is submitted without an indication that an intermediate nonprovisional application directly claims the benefit of the provisional application and the instant nonprovisional application is not filed within the twelve month period, the Office will not have sufficient information to enter the benefit claim into the computer database. Therefore, the Office will not recognize such a benefit claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 119-123, 130-131 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for a polypeptide having at least 80% identity to a polypeptide comprising the amino acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 371 or said polypeptide lacking its associated signal peptide, wherein said polypeptide is limited by a functional activity that is specific and substantial for a polypeptide comprising the amino acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 371, does not reasonably provide enablement for polypeptides not identical to SEQ ID NO: 371 that are not limited by a functional activity that is specific and substantial for a polypeptide comprising the amino acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 371. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The claims are drawn to a polypeptide having at least 80% amino acid sequence identity to the polypeptide of SEQ ID NO: 371, to said polypeptide lacking its associated signal peptide, or to the extracellular domain thereof. There is no functional limitation in the claims.

The claim encompasses an unreasonable number of inoperative polypeptides, which the skilled artisan would not know how to use. While the specification suggests that the polypeptide of SEQ ID NO: 371 is a secreted polypeptide, secreted polypeptides have widely varying activities. See page 1, lines 8-15. Therefore, knowledge that a 5 protein is secreted does not provide predictability regarding function.

There are no working examples of polypeptides less than 100% identical to the SEQ ID NO: 371. The skilled artisan would not know how to use non-identical polypeptides on the basis of teachings in the prior art or specification unless they had a functional activity that is specific and substantial for a polypeptide comprising the amino
10 acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 371. The specification does not provide guidance for using polypeptides related to (i.e., 80%-99% identity) but not identical to SEQ ID NO: 371. The claims are broad because they do not require the claimed polypeptide to be identical to the disclosed sequence and because the claims have no functional limitation.

For these reasons, which include the complexity and unpredictability of the nature
15 of the invention and art in terms of the diversity of secreted proteins and lack of knowledge about function(s) of encompassed polypeptides structurally related to SEQ ID NO: 371, the one limited working example of PRO1186 polypeptide and its one function, the lack of direction or guidance for using polypeptides that are not identical to SEQ ID NO: 371, and the breadth of the claims for structure without function, it would require 20 undue experimentation to use the invention commensurate in scope with the claims.

It is suggested that the claims be limited to a polypeptide that induces angiogenesis in adrenal cortical epithelial cells.

Claims 119-123, 130-131 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably 5 convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The claims are drawn to polypeptides having at least 80%, 85%, 90%, 95% or 99% sequence identity with the amino acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 371. The claims do not require that the polypeptide possess any particular biological activity, nor any 10 particular conserved structure, or other disclosed distinguishing feature. Thus, the claims are drawn to a genus of polypeptides that is defined only by sequence identity.

To provide adequate written description and evidence of possession of a claimed genus, the specification must provide sufficient distinguishing identifying characteristics of the genus. The factors to be considered include disclosure of complete or partial 15 structure, physical and/or chemical properties, functional characteristics, structure/function correlation, methods of making the claimed product, or any combination thereof. In this case, the only factor present in the claim is a partial structure in the form of a recitation of percent identity. There is not even identification of any particular portion of the structure that must be conserved. Accordingly, in the absence of 20 sufficient recitation of distinguishing identifying characteristics, the specification does not provide adequate written description of the claimed genus.

Vas-Cath Inc. v. Mahurkar, 19USPQ2d 1111, clearly states “applicant must convey with reasonable clarity to those skilled in the art that, as of the filing date sought, he or she was in possession of the invention. The invention is, for purposes of the 'written description' inquiry, whatever is now claimed." (See page 1117.) The specification does not "clearly allow persons of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that [he or she] invented what is claimed." (See Vas-Cath at page 1116). As discussed above, 5 the skilled artisan cannot envision the detailed chemical structure of the encompassed genus of polypeptides, and therefore conception is not achieved until reduction to practice has occurred, regardless of the complexity or simplicity of the method of isolation. Adequate written description requires more than a mere statement that it is part of the invention and reference to a potential method of isolating it. The compound itself 10 is required. See Fiers v. Revel, 25 USPQ2d 1601 at 1606 (CAFC 1993) and Amgen Inc. v. Chugai Pharmaceutical Co. Ltd., 18 USPQ2d 1016.

Art Unit: 1647

One cannot describe what one has not conceived. See Fiddes v. Baird, 30 USPQ2d 1481 at 1483. In Fiddes, claims directed to mammalian FGF's were found to be unpatentable due to lack of written description for that broad class. The specification 15 provided only the bovine sequence.

Therefore, only isolated polypeptides comprising the amino acid sequence set forth in SEQ ID NO: 371, but not the full breadth of the claim meets the written description provision of 35 U.S.C. §112, first paragraph. Applicant is reminded that Vas-Cath makes clear that the written description provision of 35 U.S.C. §112 is severable 20 from its enablement provision (see page 1115).

Art Unit: 1647

Claims 58-63, 66, 67, 69, 70 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The PRO1186 polypeptide (SEQ ID NO: 371) is presumably as a soluble or 5 secreted protein, and is not disclosed as being expressed on a cell surface. Accordingly, the limitation "extracellular domain" is indefinite, as the art does not recognize soluble or secreted proteins as having such domains. Further, if the protein had an extracellular domain, the recitation of "the extracellular domain ... lacking its associated signal sequence" is indefinite as a signal sequence is not generally considered to be part of an
10 extracellular domain, as signal sequences are cleaved from said domains in the process of secretion from the cell. The metes and bounds are not clearly set forth.

Conclusion

Claims 125, 126, 129 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base 15 claim.
